With multiple years of experience, Thaddeus Faulknor has fulfilled his hope of writing a book that outlines his expertise in trade and real estate. His book, ABC Book of Buying and Selling Real Estate, is a reference and self-help novel that addresses anyone who wants to get into real estate. It has information that benefits sellers and buyers alike. Further, the book inspires aspiring realtors to pursue their careers and teaches them how to market their products. As an experienced trade worker, Thaddeus also describes vocational careers like carpentry and cabinetry. His book covers subjects that range from pricing and making offers to knowing when someone needs a lawyer for a purchase. In other words, he writes some of the best-kept secrets that he has learned and has compiled them into an accessible book for readers who want to get ahead in their professional lives.

His philosophy is “Teach a person to fish and feed him for life instead of feeding him for one day.” This is a principle that he not only teaches but lives, especially when he migrated to the United States.
